LEGACY

JUGHEAD® THE HUNGER

PREVIOUSLY...

With the saga of deranged scientist Milton Doiley and his army of the undead behind them, Jughead, Archie and werewolf hunter Betty are trying to move forward with only the undead. Hot Dog as a souvenir from the gruesome experience. What none of them know, however, is that it was Mr. Lodge behind the scenes pulling the strings the whole time, and his business is not yet finished. But Mr. Lodge isn't the only person with some unfinished business involving the werewolf and his friends...

NOT MY FAULT
ARCHIE ANDREWS
SUDDENLY TURNED INTO THE FRIGGIN'
EQUALIZER.

AND MIGHT I ADD, THE ONLY REASON
HE MADE IT OUT OF THERE AT ALL IS BECAUSE OF ME. SO YOU'RE ALL WELCOME.

YEAH, YOU'RE A
REGULAR AMERICAN HERO,
ALRIGHT. NOW DO ME A
FAVOR AND HOLD HIM DOWN,
TEDDY ROOSEVELT.

"HOLD HIM DOWN WITH YOUR ONE GOOD, REMAINING
ARM," I BELIEVE YOU
MEANT TO SAY,
DOC.

Oh,
BOO HOO.
LIKE IT'S NOT GOING TO GROW BACK.

AAAH!!

AND ANY SON OF FP JONES--

--AIN'T
GOING DOWN
WITHOUT A FIGHT.

IF YOU DID SEE YOUR DAD...

...HE'S GOT LIKE FRIGGIN'
UNICORN STATUS
AT THIS POINT.

THE COOPERS HAVE BEEN WAITING TO NAIL THAT ONE FOR A LOOOONG TIME.

NO OFFENSE, BETTY.
BUT LET THEM WAIT FOREVER.

FP MAY HAVE NEVER BEEN FATHER OF THE YEAR BUT HE'S STILL MY--

Ah,
DAMMIT.
HOT DOG,
DON'T...

GO IN THERE...

"BUT THE SAME CAN'T BE SAID ABOUT HIS FAMILY!"

AND...
HERE WE ARE.

NO
HOT DOG,
THOUGH.
NOW WHERE THE HELL COULD HE HAVE--

SNIF!
SNIF!

WAIT
A SEC.
GOT HIS SCENT...

SNIF!
SNIF!

A SCENT I'VE PICKED UP
BEFORE...

AND...
ANOTHER.

A SCENT
I'M ALL TOO FAMILIAR WITH.

HELLO, COUSIN.

BINGO...

Oh,
JUGHEAD,
JUGHEAD,
JUGHEAD.
WE'D HEARD
RUMORS, COUSIN...

BUT HONESTLY,
I HOPED IT WASN'T TRUE.

CONSORTING WITH A COOPER?
AND THE VERY MAN WHO SHOT
YOU?

HOW UTTERLY DISAPPOINTING.

AND YET,
HERE YOU ARE.

BACK
FOR ME AGAIN.

Oh, I NEVER SAID
I WAS HERE
FOR YOU, COUSIN.

DOGS AND WEREWOLVES: DISTANT COUSINS?

ANALYZING A LINK BETWEEN COMMON HOUSEHOLD PETS AND MYTHICAL BEASTS

The history of lycanthropy traces back to medieval European folklore. Yet, over 4,000 years ago in Russia, humans of the time would channel the wolf's "killer instinct" by eating it to become a man or warrior. However, there was never any physical evidence of these rituals—until now. Anthropologists working on an ancient settlement in the Russian steppes discovered the remains of 64 dogs and wolves that dated back to 1900-1700 BCE. The charred remains of the animals, some wolves but mostly dogs, showed evidence of being roasted and filleted, unmistakable signs of consumption. The bones also showed precision and preparation in the way they were chopped up, suggesting ritual significance. At the time, dogs would not have been considered a food source but companions. The remains revealed the dogs would have been healthy adults, suggesting they had some importance in the community as they were well looked after. Most were also male, as were the dogs mentioned in written accounts of the rituals.

Another legend that links dogs to werewolves comes from the common myth that dogs have intense or bizarre reactions to full moons. Dogs, like their ancestors the wolves, are known to howl at the moon when it's full. However, none of these behaviors have ever been scientifically proven to be directly caused by the cycles of the moon. In a study done in Sydney in the early 2000s, researchers accessed twelve months' worth of public health records, and extracted the data on daily admissions for dog bites from all accident and emergency departments. They selected a year that had sufficient full moons and dog bites so that any correlation could be made. The results proved that there was no significant difference for hospital admissions on nights with full moons.

Although science hasn't officially confirmed the full moon's effect on pet behavior, there are some theories as to why pet injuries might increase during this particular time. The most common is that pet owners are simply spending more time outside with their pets when the moon's light is at its peak. Pet owners should practice extra care whenever they spend time with their pets outside in the evening hours. Even if there's no scientific correlation between dogs and full moons—you don't want your poor pooch out alone at night, exposed to animals or other beings that are impacted by the phases of the moon.
